HEARING ON SONG BOOK PROTEST

The Boston School Committee this afternoon gave a public hearing as the result of the storm which has broken out over the song book which was compiled for use in the schools by James M. McLaughlin, director of music.

Leading colored citizens of Boston and their friends, including Moorfield Storey, the lawyer, objected to the singing in the schools of songs by Stephen C. Foster and others in negro dialect in which the words "darky" and "nigger" appear.

Whether or not they desire to have "Dixie," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" and "My Old Kentucky Home" omitted is to be seen at this afternoon's hearing.

Objections will also be heard to including "Maryland, My Maryland" in the school singing, on account of its Civil War memories.

The book over which all the protest has been made comes in several parts, is called "Forty Best Songs" and is a compilation of best known songs, including "Annie Laurie," "Believe Me, if All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Nelly Was a Lady," "Robin Adair" and others which have been popular in America for generations.

As the result of early protests, "Oh! Susanna," by Foster has already been ordered dropped by Superintendent Dyer and today's hearing is certain to result in the elimination of other songs.

Record Fish Cargo Reaches Gloucester

The largest consignment of fish ever brought to Gloucester in a single vessel reached that port today when the Norwegian steamer Graf, Captain E. Steilberg, landed 1,400,000 pounds of salted cod. The fish found a ready market. The Graf sighted no warships on her nineteen days' trip from the Faroe Islands.

Kaiser to Make Mahometans Fight

LONDON, Nov. 12.—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Central News says:

"The Kaiser has ordered that all Mahometans captured from the allied armies be sent to Constantinople, to serve in the Turkish army. A telegram from Bucharest says Halil Bey, uncle of Enver Bey, the leader of the Young Turks, has arrived there on a special mission in behalf of Turkey."

Lehigh Valley Train Wrecked; 8 Injured

MUD RUN, Pa., Nov. 12.—Eight persons were injured when Lehigh Valley passenger train No. 2 Buffalo to New York was derailed seven miles east of White Haven, Pa., near here this morning. The engine and several coaches left the rails.

PRESIDENT REBUKES TROTTER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—In a heated, sensational manner, negro delegates from the National Independent Equal Rights League today demanded from President Wilson the abolition of segregation in the government departments and received a sharp and pointed rebuke from the Chief Executive. To the spokesman of the delegation, W. Monroe Trotter of Boston, the President said:

"You have spoken to me as no other man has spoken since assumed the presidency. When your organization calls upon me again it will have to select another spokesman."

The President made a lengthy address to the negro delegates, beginning by rebuking them for dragging politics into the question and saying that if they had made a mistake in voting for him they ought to vote against him. He said he had not sought the presidency of the United States. He added that his present burdens were almost too much for human flesh to bear.

Shortly after this point in his address, Trotter began to interrupt the President and question him about various points he had made.

The President declined to submit to this, saying that Trotter evidently was trying to put passion into his questions, and that he was speaking to him, Woodrow Wilson, the man, rather than the President of the United States.

The President then rebuked Trotter in the manner stated above.

The President declared that he believed the interests of the negro would be best served by making him independent of the white race. He said the segregation was undertaken to avoid friction and trouble between the two races and that no matter how much they might deplore prejudice existing between the white and the negro they must take into account the fact that it exists. The problem cannot be dealt with in a sentimental, but a practical way, he added.

U. S. Battleship North Carolina Safe in Beirut Harbor

WASHINGTON Nov. 12.—The United States battleship North Carolina is safe in Beirut Harbor. The American cruiser Tennessee now in the Mediterranean reported early today to the Navy Department that she had been in wireless communication with the North Carolina yesterday and that the ship was safe in Beirut Harbor.

Capt. Fish Defends Himself on Stand

Captain John A. Fish of New York took the stand today in his own defence in the United States District Court, where he is on trial on a charge of burning his yacht to collect insurance. With a chart of the yacht he indicated the arrangement of the cabins in beginning his testimony.

BRIDGE DENIES AIDING MILLIE SULLIVAN'S BURIAL

Accused Man Furious at Discovery of Espionage in Cell.

HOULTON, Nov. 12. — Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, imprisoned here as the slayer of Mildred Sullivan, today discovered that a dictograph had been hidden in the wall of his cell, presumably for the purpose of getting evidence to be used at his trial.

His discovery came a short time after Ambrose Bridge, one-time sweetheart of Mildred Sullivan, had defended himself from criticism and told his attitude in the case in a long talk with an AMERICAN reporter.

Dr. Dudley was furious at his discovery. It came about by chance. Dr. Dudley has been exercising in his cell with a chair, pushing it above his head and moving it back and forth.

Early today, a chair-leg scraped away a bit of paper high up on the wall, and revealed an object that caught the doctor's eye. He set his chair against the wall, climbed upon it and managed to reach the object and ripped it down.

Then he got mad, for what he held was the listening end of a dictagraph of the most modern type.

Dr. Dudley said nothing of his discovery, but asked to see his counsel, Ransford Shaw. He told Attorney Shaw the facts. Attorney Shaw called into conference Attorneys Doherty and Tompkins, who, with him, are defending his Pellitiers, Alice and Perley, who are accused as accessories in the case.

DEMAND PROMPT HEARING.

The lawyers were furious. They condemned her dictagraph trick in unmeasured terms. They demanded a prompt and full preliminary hearing in the case, and prepared to fight to force the government to show its hand.

Ambrose Bridge's story as told today was one of the most interesting developments in the case. He praised County Attorney Archibald and the sheriffs as "good men, who are doing their duty," and condemned the rough burial of Mildred Sullivan in the woods as brutal.

Bridge talked with feeling. He declined at this stage of the proceedings, with the Grand Jury hearing less than a week away, to state his full position in the affair.

BRIDGE IS NATTY DRESSER.

Bridge looks more like the chauffeur for a wealthy family or a student than he does a lumber for a telephone company. He is natty in his dress and is clean cut.

He has never used intoxicants or tobacco in any form in his life, and instead of being 30 odd, as generally reported, he is in his 23d year. He has the alert, robust body of an athlete. His hands are strong, his shoulders broad; he has regular features, keen eyes, a firm jaw and thick black hair.

"I guess by this time the public has got a queer notion of me," he said.

"Well, under the circumstances it is natural, because they don't and can't understand all the facts and I have never told my side of this case. I don't know as I want to even now. The time isn't ripe for all I've got to say. But the time is coming when the public will see Ambrose Bridge in a different light and be more merciful.

HELPED MILDRED.

"When I read paper after paper and saw how I was being denounced and heard people talking, it took a lot of patience and some courage. I gritted my teeth and decided that my part was to bear it. Mind you I'm not saying now that I am guilty in the least sense. I'm not making any admissions.

"I'm just saying that in my own conscience I know I am not deserving of all the things that have been said about me. That's what has held me up and gave me the spirit to walk the streets with my head up, because I know lots of things the public don't know and because I know I did all in my power for Millie and her people.

"Do you think if I was as bad as

Dying Attorney Executes Will by Mark of X

The death-bed will of a man so badly injured that he could only make a feeble "X" mark at the bottom of the document, in place of his signature, was filed in the Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham today.

It is the will of Frank E. Bradbury, late member of the law firm of White & Bradbury of No. 85 Devonshire street, Boston, with residence at No. 61 Homenway street, Back Bay. Mr. Bradbury was also vice-president of the International Mercantile & Bonding Co.

On November 3, while in Chicago on business, Mr. Bradbury was struck by a runaway horse and thrown in front of a trolley car, receiving fatal injuries.

At St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago Mr. Bradbury survived long enough to make his will. A lawyer and witnesses were called and, between gasps of pain, Mr. Bradbury distributed his property among those he loved.

At the close a pen was handed him. The dying man scrawled his mark and the act was attested by three witnesses.

Leaders See Great Gain in Business

The following reports bear evidence of the rapidly increasing general business — prosperity's advance agent—in the United States:

George B. Caldwell of Chicago, president of the Investment Bankers' Association, sees tremendous prosperity ahead for the country.

Mr. Caldwell is in Philadelphia, presiding at the opening session of the annual convention of his organization. There are 350 bankers present. Prior to the opening of the session President Caldwell said:

"The United States is on the verge of the greatest prosperity the country has ever known.

* * *

"We have reached the bottom after a period of declines.

"Things are now getting better every day."

Worcester Woman Hit by Auto; Dying

WORCESTER, Nov. 12.—While crossing Main street, near Benefit, today Mrs. Ellen Crotty, fifty-one years old, was struck and knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by John Jacque, a manufacturer of glass, receiving a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. She is not expected to recover.

ALLIES IN GRIPS WITH GERMANS ON LONG BATTLE LINE

Terrific hand-to-hand fighting along the great battle line in Belgium and Northwestern France, particularly in the region of the Aisne, is reported by the Paris War Office today.

The conflict is marked by alternate advances and repulses, without decisive result for either side. The fighting is described as extremely violent, and it is evident that the Germans have not relaxed, in any degree, their "supreme effort" to break through the allies' line of steel and push on to their objective on the channel coast.

The Prussian guards assumed the offensive in the northern zone against the British, but their attacks were repulsed.

A German shell exploded yesterday in the street opposite the American Consulate at Rheims. The front of the building was cut up by the shrapnel bullets, but neither the American shield nor the flag on the consulate was damaged.

William Bardell, the Consul, left the city by direction of Ambassador Herrick three weeks ago, and the consulate is therefore empty. So far as is known there is not a single American in Rheims.

Reports of another serious defeat of the Germans in East Prussia come in today's cable dispatches from Petrograd. It is stated unofficially that in a battle between the Russian army and the retreating Germans near the border, 20,000 prisoners, together with large quantities of guns and ammunition, were taken by the Czar's troops.

Petrograd also announces that serious dissension has arisen between General Dankl, commanding the Austrian forces, and the German generals. The Austrians, it is maintained, believe that they are now being used by the Germans as a buffer between themselves and the advancing Russians and as a consequence are sick of the war and have no heart in its further prosecution.

One correspondent wires as follows: "A situation of influence on events is caused by the growing hostility and lack of mutual confidence between the Austrian and German armies. This sentiment, which during my trip to the front in Galicia and Poland was at first barely noticeable, is now becoming more conspicuous and assuming proportions which should be watched. If these tendencies continue to increase with the same rapidity as in the past month it is quite conceivable that Austria may break with her ally and seek an independent peace."

The Russian War Office officially announces that all along

MOTHER SAYS SCHOOL HEAD STRUCK HER: HE TAKES CASE TO COURT

Charging she was assaulted by Charles Lamprey, acting master of the Martin school of Roxbury, Mrs. Mary Fay of No. 196 Parker street, says she is going to demand his removal from the school. Mrs. Fay is the mother of two boys who have been pupils at the school. She has been summoned into the Roxbury District Court on a complaint drawn by Lamprey charging she made a disturbance in the Martin school. The case goes to trial next Tuesday.

Mrs. Fay has kept her boys, John W. Fay Jr., twelve, and Francis Fayten, from school since the alleged disturbance and vows she will not return them there. Mrs. Fay says that on November 5 she went to the school in response to a story told her by John.

"Last Wednesday night, Johnny had left school and boarded an automobile truck some distance from the school with two other schoolmates when they were hailed by Mr. Lamprey," says the mother. "The other two responded to his beckoning but Johnnie was afraid and came home and told me the story. He said he had been smoking a cigarette.

"Mr. Fay suggested that I go to school with my son and find out what the master had to say. We went to the office of Mr. Lamprey and I asked him the trouble with John. When upon he referred to the riding on the truck and smoking.

"Is that all," I asked. Mr. Lamprey sharply responded 'isn't that enough?' and I told him it was not and certainly no cause for whipping him. Mr. Lamprey grew white with anger and snapped, 'Is that so?' He grabbed my son and marched out the door with me after him.

"Turning the collar of John's overcoat upward Mr. Lamprey then placed his hands on my son's throat and raised him from the floor. John screamed and Mr. Lamprey made another attempt when I interfered. Then Mr. Lamprey struck me a blow on the right shoulder with his fist. I was stunned by the blow. He knocked my glasses off and I screamed. My son ran out of the school and I followed with Mr. Lamprey behind me. Leaving the building I asked for my boys' discharge cards and they were refused. I told Mr. Lamprey that when he got through with me that he would never strike another woman.

"Turning to an assistant, Mr. Lamprey said 'Why, I will bring action against her for making a disturbance in a public school' and he did. Not long after the occurance at the school he sent the submaster of the school to my house, in my absence, and with two police officers examined the room of John and then the proceedure in Court was made.

"My son has had trouble with his ear as a result of the treatment of the teacher and I received treatment from my physician for the blow I received. I sustained a black and blue mark that I carried sometime. I have been to the assistant superintendent of schools. I want Mr. Lamprey discharged from the Martin school.

"They have sent the truant officer to me with a note warning me of a fine should I fail to send my boys to school, but they are not going to the Martin school for a while anyway."

SOCIALISTS IN A. F. OF L. OUT TO BEAT GOMPERS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—With more than twoscore committees considering important business preparatory to making reports and with the time limit for introducing resolutions set at midnight tonight, the delegates to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor again today spent the time listening to addresses by several representatives. Between the speeches more resolutions were introduced. When the convention opened at 9:30 o'clock this morning it was learned that Max Hays, general organizer of the International Typographical Union, of Cleveland, O., a Socialist leader, was the choice of the Socialists for president of the federation, and it was their intention to make every effort to prevent the re-election of Samuel Gompers.

Big Mackerel Catch Brings Price Down

Though late in the season for mackerel, that fish sold cheaper today in the Boston market than at any time since the season opened. Bloaters sold for 25 cents each and medium-sized mackerel for 15 cents each. The low prices were due to the large catch—24,000—made last night by five netters off Thatcher's Island. At the Fish Pier the wholesale price for bloaters was 16 cents each—for medium-sized 10½ cents each.

Police Renew Hunt for Assailant of Saugus School Girl

Mary Bagley, the nineteen-year-old Saugus girl who by feigning death frightened into flight the footpad who attacked her near her home on Hesper street, is today recovering from the effects of the attack, while the police are pushing their search for her assailant.

He is described as a man of twenty-five, clean shaven, five feet nine inches tall, of medium build and wearing a grey suit and cap.

Miss Bagley was on her way home from Lynn, where she works, when the man struck her with brass knuckles, knocking her down an embankment. Her hair was so matted with burrs and blood that it was necessary to cut it off before she could be treated. Her eye was blacked and her face was cut.

Police Land Suspect in Billiard Room

"Tom" Longan, whom the police credit with the alias of John J. Lewis, played a long shot on an overcoat in the Quincy House billiard room, but caromed off on the police bailiff in the shape of Patrolman Wills. The police say the overcoat "Tom" took belongs to Harry F. Locke of No. 9 Water street, and that "Tom" miscued badly. Wills "froze" to "Tom" and the latter is due to land against the "rail" in city court.

Malden Light Co. Lowers Its Rate

Malden, Melrose, Medford, Everett and South Boston will get cheaper electricity for a New Year present. The Tenney interests, controlling the Malden Electric Company and Malden & Melrose Gas Light Company, announce that, beginning January 1, the kilowatt rate for electric current will be reduced one cent. The present rate is eleven cents per kilowatt if paid within fifteen days, or twelve cents after fifteen days. The new rate will be eleven and ten cents. This will equal the Boston rate.

American Fashions for American Women

"The Service Store"

Ever notice that the poorer an article is, the more it costs to sell it?

Just apply this principle to clothes. Judge the true quality of clothing by the size of its advertising—and also by its tone.

You'll quickly discover that good clothing does not require the hypnotism of large space or the bluster of big black type to sell it. Good clothing depends not so much on loud assertion just before its sale as on quiet proof long after the sale.

To the get-rich-quick clothier this doubtless seems a slower way. But a half century's good-clothes experience has convinced us it's the surer.

ARE THE BRAVES ON THE MARKET FOR $400,000

One morning in September when the Braves were fighting to hold their lead in the National League race, President Gaffney was approached in the Copley-Plaza Hotel by a State street capitalist who produced a certified check for $25,000 and offered to buy the Braves for $400,000. Mr. Gaffney laughed at him. A reporter of the AMERICAN was present at the time.

"Nothing doing," declared the club's president. "I wouldn't even sell my share of the club for that sum. I don't believe the club could be bought for double the figure you offer."

The negotiations closed as suddenly as they opened.

Today the report is circulated that Mr. Gaffney has set a price of $400,000 on the Braves.

It is known that since the World's Series closed a syndicate has offered a good bit more than $400,000 for the club.

Past experience has shown that almost anything is likely to happen in the buying and selling of major league ball clubs, but it would hardly seem, on the face of things, that Mr. Gaffney would set a price on the Braves considerably below what he has been recently offered by responsible men.

Would You Trust A Man

whose surroundings, mode of life, and food and drink, have combined to make him treacherous, indolent and unreliable?

And food and drink are among the chief causes.

Coffee—one of the commonest beverages—contains a drug, caffeine, which affects stomach, liver, heart and other organs.

Some persons are strong enough to stand the attacks of the coffee-drug, but to most people it is a poison, and sooner or later is bound to tell.

If you find coffee is hurting you, quit it and try

POSTUM

This healthful food-drink is made of prime wheat and a bit of wholesome molasses, carefully blended and roasted. It contains the food elements of the wheat and molasses and nothing else—nothing injurious or harmful.

Serve Postum piping hot and it is delicious and invigorating.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

"NO BITE" is about as poor a recommendation for tobacco as "no rheumatics" is for a wooden leg. But tobacco that won't bite and yet is chuck full o' taste—that's a different story—that's VELVET.
Velvet Joe
It's not easy to make tobacco absolutely cool, while still retaining its natural taste and fragrance. But it's done in VELVET, The Smoothest Smoking Tobacco. 10c tins and 5c metal-lined bags.

THERESE CHOMBIS. CHOFKY, the Moravian girl, now in Winthrop, who fled from Paris to escape being made a prisoner.

MORAVIAN GIRL HERE TO ESCAPE FROM WAR ZONE

Therese Chambrechofky, twenty-two, a Moravian girl, has arrived at the home of her cousin, Fed P. Weiss, an immigrant inspector, in Court Park, Winthrop, after having fled from Paris, where she was living with an uncle, to escape life in war camps.

She was given an alternative of leaving France or being placed in a concentration camp. Unwilling to undergo the harsh treatment which she learned was accorded prisoners, she decided to come to America.

Aliens detained in French camps, she says, have to work hard and sleep on straw pallets. The food, too, is poor. On the way over she was listed as a Polish girl in order to avoid detention.

According to her story, the French government is using every means to detect spies, who are reported to be active in the country. The concentration camp was devised as one means of keeping all foreigners rounded up.

The police system requires that every foreigner arriving in Paris must register with the prefect of police. All the janitors in the city have been ordered to report immediately whenever a foreigner takes up a residence in houses in their charge.

The wounded men are shown great attention by the Parisian women, who shower them with bouquets and candy, she states.

WHY IT'S A GOOD THING FOR THE WEALTHY NOBLEMEN TO MARRY CHORUS GIRLS.

Sound scientific reasons have been discovered for encouraging titled Europeans in their very modern tendency to choose for their wives women of the stage.

Girl Gets $1,000 in Brookline Man's Will

Lilian H. Gates, referred to as "the daughter of our neighbor" in the will of the late James North of Brookline, which has been filed at Dedham, receives $1,000 in cash, also many beautiful pictures, costly sets of china, and much of the household furniture. Most of the estate is left in trust to his two daughters and son. They also receive many of the well-known works of art which Mr. North possessed.

Antis Hold Bazaar for Belgian Fund

Society flocked to the bazaar at the home of Mrs. Stillman Kelley No. 48 Washington avenue, Cambridge, under the auspices of the Cambridge Anti-Suffrage Association. The proceeds will be given to the Belgian fund.

HOW TO DANCE THE "TWO-IN-ONE."

This course of instruction by Margaret St. Clair, with the numerous illustrations which accompany it, makes it easy for anybody to master the attractive steps of this popular new dance.

'Disarmament at War's End'—Murlin

"Disarmament will come at the end of the present war," predicted President Murlin of Boston University at the New England Methodist Men's convention at Tremont Temple resumed today. Dr. Murlin also sounded a new phrase: "In time of peace prepare for peace, instead of war."

Newspapermen Held.

NORTHERN FRANCE, Nov. 12.—Three more English correspondents are in prison, having been arrested here by order of the military authorities. The charge against them is not stated.

Makes Peace Plea at A. F. L. Convention

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—A plea for united action to end the war was made by the fraternal delegate of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress at the convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Taft at Funeral of Yale Policeman

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 12.—Ex-President Taft, former President Timothy Dwight of Yale and President Hadley were among the noted Yale graduates who attended the funeral of James E. Donnelly, the Yale campus policeman. The Yale undergraduates attended in a body.

Bacteria Is Killed by Violet Rays

The usual bacteria is killed in one-twentieth of a second by the use of the violet rays, declared Max von Recklinghausen of Strassburg, in speaking before the New England Water Works Association at the Brunswick.

Official Reports

RUSSIAN

PETROGRAD, Nov. 12.—Small skirmishes have occurred on the borders of the province of Suwalki. We maintained our position at Kolno. Every attempt of the Turkish troops to outflank us has been defeated. We have repulsed every attack made by the Turks.

The Russians have captured many prisoners and ammunition. We occupy the whole of the valley of Akenchard and are consolidating our hold on the territories we occupy.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, Nov. 12.—In the region of Central Galicia we voluntarily withdrew before the Russian attack.

The Russians have advanced in the region of Lisko, crossing the lower Wisloka. The Russians have again occupied Przysecz.

In the Tryi valley the Russians were compelled to flee before the fire from our armored train which surprised their cavalry. The Russians suffered heavy losses.

TURKISH.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 12.—The Russian forces in the Caucasus have been forced back to their second line after suffering heavy losses in killed and prisoners.

Our offensive movement continues.

Our troops who crossed the Egyptian frontier occupied a position at Sheikzuileh and the fortress at Nekrieh. We took four field pieces.

FRENCH.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—On our left wing the battle continues uninterruptedly with the same violence, followed with alternate advances and repulses that, however, are thus far without decisive importance.

In a general way the battle front has not materially changed since the evening of November 10. It extends along the line of Lombaertzyde and Dixmude, the Nieuport canal to Ypres, advancing from Ypres to the region of Zonnebeke and east of Armentieres.

There has been no change in the position held by the British troops, who have repulsed the attacks of the enemy, particularly an offensive movement undertaken by the Prussian guard.

From the La Bassee canal as far as the River Oise only minor engagements have occurred.

In the region of the River Aisne, in the vicinity of Vailly, we maintained our position in the face of a desperate, hand-to-hand counter attack. We have made more effective our position on the ground previously retaken from the enemy in this vicinity.

In the region of Craonne, at the Heurtebise-Farm, our artillery, brought up to silence the enemy's guns, has demolished several of them.

There has also been some progress made by our forces near Berry-au-Bac.

In the Argonne region, in the Woevre, in Lorraine and in the Vosges, the respective positions have undergone no change.

RUSSIA REPORTS SWEEPING ADVANCE

the whole line the Russian troops continue to make progress. "The increasing pressure of the Czar's forces has caused the Austrian and German troops to fall back," says the report. "Nowhere have they been able to arrest the onward rush of the Russians. Cossacks already have begun an investment of the outer forts of Cracow. The Austrian and German forces there are planning a desperate resistance to the Russian attacks, but confidence is expressed in military circles as to the final outcome of the battle there."

It is reported that martial law has been proclaimed at Cracow and the civil population is evacuating the city. Przemysl, the Austrian fortress in Galicia, is completely invested, it is announced.

It is declared that it was the failure of the German Crown Prince to hold his position in the centre which compelled a retreat along the whole line of the eastern battle. While General von Hindenberg on the left and the Austrians on the right were both maintaining their positions, the Crown Prince's army was fleeing back to the Fatherland, according to the Russian narrative.

KARLSRUHE REPORTED TRAPPED.

The report comes from Montevideo that the German cruiser Karlsruhe, sister ship of the Emden, has been surrounded by hostile warships between Cape Verde and Pernambuco.

The Karlsruhe was convoying captured vessels when sighted, the dispatch says. She is credited with having destroyed thirteen British vessels in Atlantic waters since her initial appearance off New York at the beginning of the war, including the steamers Strathrov, Maple Branch, Highland Hope, Indrani, Rio Iguassu, Farn, Niceto, Maria de Larrinaga, Cervantes, Cornish City, Pruth, Condor and Lynrowan.

Berlin appears to have taken heart as the result of recent operations in Belgium and against England. The press of the German capital predicts "a new era of achievement," and the populace, today's cables say, is publicly celebrating the sinking of the British gunboat Niger in the raid off Deal and the advance of the German army into Dixmude. Two thousand British and French prisoners were paraded through the streets.

FLANKING MOVEMENT BY ALLIES.

Paris expects important results from the attempt the allies are now making to launch a flanking movement in the battle of Flanders. Under the protection of Anglo-French fleet which lies off the Belgian coast, an army made up of British, French Belgians and Indians is trying to swing around the right wing of the German forces on the Ostend-Dixmude-Ypres line.

The allies have been able to make progress but very slowly, for the invaders have contested every inch of ground. Night attacks have been a feature of the fighting, especially in the vicinity of Armentieres, where the assaults and counter-attacks have been terrific. Farther to the east in Belgium the Germans are said to have charged as many as fifteen times in one night.

Dixmude commands a straight road leading to Dunkirk, one of the two goals of the invaders' channel campaign, the other being Calais. The allies have built trenches on both sides of the road, have erected barricades across it and have planted artillery on heights dominating it so that it can be swept from a distance.

Russian troops are continuing their successful campaign against the Turks in Armenia, it was officially announced at Petrograd, every attempt of the Turks to outflank the Czar's troops having been defeated.

The Turkish War Office, however, announces that the Russian forces in the Caucasus have been forced back to their second line after suffering heavy losses in killed and prisoners.

With the use of armored trains, the Austrians claim to have compelled the Russians to retreat in the region of Stryj valley.

"The Sixth Battalion of Austrian Infantry that crossed the Danube has been annihilated by Servians at Szderevo," says an official report from Nish. The Servians claim to have taken 2,000 prisoners and two heavy guns.

SINKING OF THE NIGER CALLED MOST DARING FEAT OF THE WAR

By HERBERT TEMPLE.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—In the long and honorable naval history of Great Britain there has been no such daring raid against her coasts as that which resulted in the sinking of the torpedo gunboat Niger in the Downs off Deal by a German submarine.

At the time of the disaster the Niger was moored at a pierhead and the commander of persons on shore saw the explosion which sent her to the bottom.

The sinking of the Niger by an unseen enemy which crept through the cordon of British warships guarding the North Sea, the Straits of Dover and the English harbors has aroused more apprehension than has existed since the German admiralty first began launching submarine attacks.

Deal is near the mouth of the Thames, and it is regarded as possible that some German submarine captain, more daring than his fellows, may yet try to penetrate the harbor of London.

SOME OF CREW MISSING.

It was first reported that all the members of the crew of the Niger escaped, but later it was said that two were missing. Three or four of the survivors were wounded, but none seriously.

This was the first time that a German submarine has penetrated the Downs. Nearly one hundred ships were at anchor at the time of the sinking of the Niger. The following dispatch from Deal gave details of the disaster.

"At once a loud explosion was heard and dense columns of smoke were seen arising from the torpedo gunboat Niger, which was moored to a pierhead. Almost immediately the vessel began to settle by the bows. The stern rose into the air until the greater part of her keel was visible. Then she slid slowly and gracefully beneath the waves.

"Twenty minutes after she was struck the Niger had disappeared. Just before she took the final plunge the boilers burst with a loud noise, and steam rushed upward, mingling with the columns of smoke.

CREW WAS AT DINNER.

"Nearly all the crew were below at dinner when the Niger was struck. It was first surmised that a mine had drifted against the vessel, for the British seamen could not believe that a German submarine would venture across the Downs among the crowded shipping, which is strongly guarded by manifold men-of-war. However, it did not take long to determine that it really was a submarine which had caused the disaster.

"Orders were immediately given to close the water-tight doors and as this was being done sailors upon the deck observed a streak of white foam, which marked the course of the fleeing submarine.

"The explosion made a big hole in the forward part of the ship below the water line, just in front of the bridge. Boats were immediately launched to pick up the survivors, who were swimming about in the water. Lieutenant-Commander Arthur T. Muir of the Niger was the last to leave his ship. The Niger carried a crew of eighty-five."

HALIFAX TAKES PRECAUTIONS TO MEET ATTACK

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 12.—Passengers arriving here from Halifax, N. S., state that warlike activity has increased in that city since the defeat of the British squadron under Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock off the coast of Chili. This is so in both naval and military circles. Two of the big 12-inch guns that were in position on the fortress at Spion-Kop have been removed to the battleship Glory. There are still four of these big guns at the fort, besides four 9.2-inch guns. Two 12-inch guns have also been placed on Fort McNab at the western entrance to the harbor.

A 300-ton vessel filled with stone has been sunk in the eastern passage and the harbor has been mined, leaving only a narrow channel for shipping. Government steamers are on duty day and night off the entrance to the harbor and all shipping is held up before entering. Two thousand men, mostly British artillerymen, man the fortress. All of these precautions have been taken because of the possibility that German cruisers may come this way.

There are never fewer than four British warships within the harbor of Halifax, and there is also a torpedo boat with a speed of thirty-two knots, which is kept for scout and patrol duty.

It is reported that a swift battle cruiser is now on its way to Halifax from England, and it is also rumored that the battleship Lion is being sent out to patrol West Indian waters.

BAD COLD? GET RELIEF AT ONCE WITHOUT QUININE

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

You can end grippe and break up a severe cold either in head, chest, body or limbs, by taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharges or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless, yet very effective treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package.

J., Nov. 12.—"A brave and daring man" was the commander of the cruiser Emden, terror of the Pacific, according to Robert Glegg, captain of the British transport steamer Loyal, one of the vessels sunk by the German warship which now has been put out of action. The views of Captain Glegg are set forth in a letter to William H. Tweddell of South Orange.

BERLIN REJOICES AT NEWS OF VICTORIES ON LAND AND SEA

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 12—News of the sinking of the British torpedo gunboat Niger in the Downs, off Deal, England, and the success of the German army at Dixmude in Belgium, caused great rejoicing here today. This was heightened by the arrival of 2,000 British and French prisoners and a detachment of captive Indians, all of whom were paraded through the streets.

The press states that the German land and sea forces are "on the threshold of a new era of achievement."

It is announced from Vienna that the Austrians are making progress against the Russians. A Constantinople dispatch mentions the political disturbances in that city and states that the Turks are pursuing their plan of campaign in Northern Armenia despite cold weather and snow.

The Cologne Gazette in a critical article on the military resources of the Teutonic allies says the combined strength of German and Austrian reserves is 18,000,000. It is officially announced that the export of leather, horse hides, calf skins, shoddy and tin plate is forbidden by a decree issued by the government.

GERMANS RUSHED OVER FALLEN COMRADES IN DIXMUDE ASSAULT

BELGIUM, Nov. 12.—There was a tremendous fighting at Dixmude, which the Germans have now retaken. The Germans, advancing in torrents, charged fifteen times in one night.

"I shal lnever forget our occupation o fthe town," said a Belgium officer, who was wounded in the course of the operations. "My regiment, after having resisted for several days in the trenches, was ordered into place, and had scarcely got there when in the middle of the night a tremendous commotion took place.

Officers were calling up their men by whistles and shouts of alarm. We were on the point of being surprised, but fortunately our machine guns had been installed in good positions and were served by determined men.

A perfect hail of bullets were thrown on the Germans, who during the night advanced fifteen times to attack. As many times they were thrown back by our troops.

"The German soldiers were even brought to the point of marching over their own dead and wounded.

"I shall never ofrget the cries of the latter amid the infernal noise of rifles and the machine-gun fusillade.

"In a single street, when daylight came, I counted over 800 German dead and wounded. These fiction cost the Germans thousands of lives, but enabled them to cross the river and establish themselves at several points on the left banks."

HARVARD MAN ORGANIZES WAR RELIEF CORPS

Richard Norton of Boston, a member of the class of 1892 at Harvard, has organized a voluntary Red Cross corps, consisting of Harvard, Yale and Princeton graduates in London, and has equipped ten motor ambulances to assist in the removal of the wounded from the battlefields in Europe, according to dispatches received in Boston today.

Norton is well known in this city. He is a son of the late Professor Charles Eliot Norton, formerly of Harvard, and has won fame himself as an educator. He was born at Dresden, Germany, on February 5, 1872. After graduating from Harvard he studied in Germany and at the American School of Classical Studies at Athens. He was a director of the American School of Classical Studies at Rome from 1899 to 1907. In 1903 he toured Central Asia for the purpose of archaeological investigation and the Cyrenaica in 1904 and 1905.

Of late years Norton has been making his home in London. His outfit is known as the American Volunteer Motor-Ambulance Corps. Two thousands of cases the wounded have been left on the battlefield without attention from five to seven days, says Norton. This inattention and delay multiplies the danger from tetanus, gangrene and other serious complications.

Norton is said to have left for the front with the first unit of the corps. The detachment is under the care of Colonel A. J. Barry of the British Red Cross Society, with a staff of two medical officers, twenty bearers (two to each car) and three expert motor engineers.

Notice
Cattle Owners and Farmers

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE exists in an alarming degree in various sections of this Commonwealth. You are hereby warned and advised to carry out the following rules:

Keep away from the premises, herds, flocks and swine of any other owner. Doing so will prevent infection of your own stock.

Do not allow anyone to inspect, examine or view your cattle, flocks or swine, except duly authorized agents of the U. S. B. of the A. I. and the Mass. Dep't of Animal Industry and require them to show satisfactory credentials and to use every precaution against your stock or carrying the disease elsewhere by using complete rubber outfits. See that they disinfect them before leaving your premises.

In infected districts keep dogs, cats, other animals, birds and fowl restrained and away from your herds.

Post notices "Danger, Keep Out" on your barns and on driveways approaching the same.

Report at once to Room 138, State House, Boston, or to the Federal authorities, even the slightest suspicion of disease in your or your neighbor's herd.

Well-meaning veterinarians may unwittingly bring infection to your herd. You are advised to forbid them, as well as others, from examining your cattle, unless properly equipped.

I wish to go on record in support of the most liberal policy on the part of the State and Nation regarding compensation to owners for property destroyed on account of this disease.

By prompt report of any suspicious case by owners, not only will the interests of the Nation, State, and their own localities be conserved, but their own interests will be protected.

FRED F. WALKER,
Commissioner Animal Industry.

More One-Way Streets May Be Added to List

The street commissioners have under consideration the advisability of adding Beacon street, from Park to Tremont; Park street, from Beacon to Tremont; Somerset street, from Beacon to Ashburton place; Ashburton place, from Bowdoin to Somerset street, and Pemberton square, leading into Somerset street, to the list of one-way streets, and are preparing new traffic regulations with that end in view.

By the plan, traffic would be prevented from entering Beacon street at Tremont and from going down Park street from Beacon. No date has yet been set by the commissioners for a hearing on the proposed new regulation.

PASTOR WHITE FREED; TO QUIZ JOHN D. PASTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Houck White, the Socialist pastor, who left Queens County jail early today, after serving six months for his conduct in the Calvary Baptist Church, is planning to repeat the attempt to interrogate the Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, in the edifice where the families of John D. Rockefeller and his son are foremost worshippers.

At a reception tonight, according to an announcement just issued by White's followers, he will outline his plans for his next attempt to enter the Fifth Avenue Calvary Baptist Church, and ask the Rev. Dr. Woelfkin several questions pertaining to the Colorado massacre.

White's sentence to jail resulted from his previous attempt to open a discussion on the Colorado mine strike, with Dr. Woelfkin during services in Calvary Church. White was literally dragged from the edifice, and made a scene of confusion and excitement.

Plans for the reception to White were completed today. The church, of which White is founder and leader, has been moved from the south side of Washington square into the dwelling house at No. 6 East Twenty-fifth street.

THE ANCIENTS' UNIFORMS

(The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company is talking of a new uniform.—NEWS ITEM.)

'Tis truly said you cannot keep a squirrel on the ground.
You cannot keep the giddy Earth from turning 'round and 'round,
And now it seems you cannot keep the Ancients in the shade,
They seek another uniform to wear upon parade.

If any sand is needed in Sahara's dry expanse,
If German troops are welcome in cathedral towns in France,
If stokers on a liner need some furs to keep them warm,
Then certainly the Ancients need another uniform.

Their uniforms now figure up to forty blazing styles.
They dazzle human vision for a radius of miles,
But war is full of horror and we live to do and dare,
So let them add another to the uniforms they wear.

WAR TAX HITS CO-OPERATIVE LOAN FIRMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Solicitor Johnson of the Treasury Department has ruled that a war stamp tax will be imposed on all transactions of building and loan associations throughout the United States. Under this ruling collections from the war tax may be several millions in excess of Congressional estimates.

This ruling, it is said will affect more than 6,400 associations, having nearly 3,000,000 members and handling annually about $1,750,000,000.

The opinion of the Solicitor differs from the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and an assistant Attorney General who interpreted the revenue law of 1898. The language in both the present law and that of Spanish War days is held by loan association officers here to be identical.

It is probable that an effort will be made by the association to fight the present construction of the law. It was pointed out that the transactions to be taxed are in small amounts, involving a vast number of documents, all of which would be subject to the stamp duties.

No opinion has been asked from the Department of Justice, but if protests are made officially it is possible that Secretary McAdoo will seek a construction from the Department of Justice.

Strike Is Followed By $50,000 Blaze

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Fire believed to be incendiary today destroyed the plant of the National Parlor Suits Company in Brooklyn, with a loss of $50,000. Forty workmen who had struck were replaced by new men and half an hour before the fire started the watchmen saw a number of men loitering about the building.

NEW YORK JUDGE ESCAPES DEATH FROM 2 BOMBS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—County Judge Louis D. Gibbs, who recently presided in the cases of several foreigners convicted under the Mann Act, narrowly escaped with his life when two bombs were exploded as he was leaving the Bronx County Courthouse. The police believe the bombs were intended for the judge.

He was knocked down by the concussion, but escaped serious injury. The lower front of the courthouse was wrecked as was the office of City Marshal John C. Hoefling.

Marshal Hoefling had just left his office when the front of the building in which it was located was shattered.

Miss Gertrude Relse, whose home is at the rear of the courthouse, was closing a window when the explosion occurred. She was thrown to the floor by the shock and painfully injured.

GUARD MILK AT DEER ISLAND IN CATTLE FIGHT

Following the discovery of disease among cattle at the Deer Island House of Correction, which the authorities are unable as yet to determine as the hoof and mouth disease, measures will be taken to protect the prisoners from the milk supply.

In regard to reports that New England children had become infected from cattle, Dr. P. H. Mullowney of the Boston Board of Health said today:

"I do not know of any recorded cases of adults having the aphthous fever from the use of milk from cows infected with the foot and mouth disease, but I also have no reason to believe that adults cannot be so infected. That fever, however, is not a serious proposition. No serious consequences follow.

The work of slaughtering infected cattle will probably begin tomorrow at Amherst, according to Commissioner Walker of the Bureau of Animal Industry. Mr. Walker emphasized the fact that the butchering would be done only by experienced men and under the most approved methods.

All chiefs of police, boards of health and registered veterinarians have been notified to forbid the removal or transportation of live-stock unless accompanied by a permit from the Board of Animal Industry.

The office at the State House is being deluged with mail from every section of the State containing requests for inspection, permits for transportation and general information.

In the western part of the State, especially, many farmers are anxious to move live stock from pasture to Winter quarters. Permits for this are only issued where the need is urgent, or where there is snow or lack of shelter for the animals in question.

A blanket regulation that affects every cattle owner is that all animals whose removal from one place to another as sanctioned must be transported in vehicles. The police of the various cities and towns are instructed to arrest all violators of the rule.

No animal of any description, save horses, and those only in districts not affected by the disease, will be allowed to set foot on the highways.

No poultry, pigeons, cats or dogs are permitted to be removed from any infected territory without written permission from the authorities.

Strangers and trespassers are likely to be quarantined and fumigated—if caught on the premises of owners of infected cattle.

At the slaughter houses, all animals have been butchered under the supervision of the Bureau of Animal Industry working in conjunction with the Federal Inspection authorities.

Where the meat has shown no trace of disease it has been sold by the authorities and the proceeds turned over to the owners.

Little Danger of Human Infection By Hoof Disease

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The Department of Agriculture says there is little danger of human infection in the foot and mouth infection among cattle and that even where human beings contract the disease the cases rarely are serious. Pasteurization or boiling of milk to insure against infection is recommended.

Milk from infected farms is not permitted to be shipped, but there always is some danger that milk might reach the market before the disease manifests itself. "In this country," the statement said, "the disease has been so rare that there are few recorded cases of its transmission to human beings. The disease, in short, is dangerous because of the loss it occasions to property, and not because of its effect upon the health of mankind."

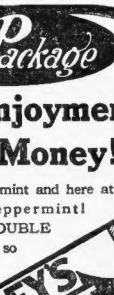
DOCTOR SAID THIS BABY WOULD DIE
His Mother Says Father John's Medicine Saved His Life


When sending this picture of her baby, Mrs. Britt of Athol, Mass., said: "The doctor told me that my baby would not live, but I gave him Father John's Medicine and now he is well and strong. The medicine made him eat well and gave him strength to walk." Mrs. Britt lives at 283 Kennebunk street, Athol, Mass. Mothers should remember that Father John's Medicine is a safe medicine to give their children, because it is free from alcohol or dangerous drugs. It is pure and nourishing and will build up the little ones in the natural way.

WOMEN'S DOG HELD PRISONER FOR HIS BOARD

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 12.—The efforts of two pretty young women—Mrs. Catherine Bristol of No. 94 Peachtree street and Miss Lucille Sharp of No. 192 Ivy street—to rescue a prisoner from the clutches of the law, halted proceedings in Judge J. B. Ridley's division of the Municipal Court and gave the court attaches and spectators a welcome diversion from the ceaseless round of criminal cases.

The prisoner, however, was a dog—a pedigreed bulldog of the name of Russell and of the value of $100. The dog has been the official note carrier between the homes of Mrs. Bristol and Miss Sharp for many months, and they wanted him.

Russell was the property of Andrew Gust, and Mr. Gust loaned him to Mrs. Bristol, where Russell has lived for some months. A few weeks ago the dog ran away and followed Gus Newsom out to the Newsom farm. Gust learned of this and got out a possessory warrant for the animal. Deputy Marshal Dan Goodlin arrested Russell and turned him over to Judge Ridley and Deputy Green. Newsom is fighting Gust's claims of ownership on the grounds that Russell is a voracious eater and ran up a heavy board bill while a guest at his farm.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR
By a Specialist.
A very satisfactory preparation which darkens gray hair and acts as a corrective agent for dandruff and other diseases of the scalp can be made at small expense and in your own home by dissolving a small box of Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water and then adding an ounce of bay rum and a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any drug store can furnish these ingredients. This is to be applied once a week until the hair is sufficiently darkened, then every two weeks to keep the hair soft and glossy and the scalp in a healthy condition. It may be used with equal success in darkening the beard. This is a preparation that gives splendid results, both as a hair darkener and a remedy for all scalp disorders, and is well worth a trial. You will find it far superior to the ordinary store preparations and much less expensive. —ADVERTISEMENT.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

A Physician's Advice

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," a person very excessively thin man or woman often recalls, "but it's not possible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the power of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength-giving, flesh-producing known to medical professions. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food during the digestive period, transforms into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means unusual. Sargol acts in a perfectly natural way, absolutely harmless, to be sold by most druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not be used by those who object to flesh. It should be used by those who are only willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more. —ADVERTISEMENT.

ANNE MORGAN ASKS FOR HELP

To Relieve War Distress Here

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—"We are facing a tremendous Winter, and it is going to need all our co-operation, all our careful planning to care for the worthy needy among us.

"We must not be blinded to suffering NEAR AT HAND while demonstrating a splendid humanitarianism toward our foreign brothers."

So said Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. P. Morgan, in an exclusive interview with an AMERICAN representative at her home, No. 219 Madison avenue.

Miss Morgan has consistently avoided publicity—with an instinct stronger even than her father—and phases of her personality have been studiously, concealed. Women with incomes nothing like hers have found themselves immensely happy without any occupation, save the sound of society's whirl, but the winters also has found her happiness by getting closer to the real workees in life.

No business woman in New York works harder than Miss Anne Morgan. Her charities are large, and to each is given the personal thought of the woman who is openly adored by those with whom she comes in contact.

MAKES VISITS EACH DAY.

Visit the headquarters any afternoon when Miss Morgan pays her daily visit; listen to her inquiries about the sick father or crippled sister; see her stand with her arms around the girls while she talks with them some improvement in the home she has helped make for them on Thirty-ninth street, and you will see the wonderfully human side of the woman who is devoting herself to making the world better for the poor.

When asked to tell of her interests and her lifework she deprecated the idea that she was doing very much.

"I feel very keenly on the subject of the American girl's needs," said Miss Morgan. "My associates with the girls at Vacation Headquarters has been one of the most stimulating experiences of my life. They make one realize that no matter what your station in life may be, we all have to develop our own initiative.

"We have got to become conscious of our own growth, and in this growth that every one with an ideal is striving for.

"These girls," continued Miss Morgan, "have grasped the larger, finer side of the question that is giving pause to Americans today—the question of the unemployed. Theirs was the pioneer movement to do twofold good, to give help and succor to the sufferers abroad by giving employment to those in need here.

MUST RELIEVE DISTRESS.

"The appalling number of unemployed women applying daily at Vacation Headquarters has made clear the crying need for major efforts to relieve the distress.

"Just last week," continued Miss Morgan, "two firms dropped between 500 and 600 girls. Many of them were depositors in the Vacation Headquarters, and in their helplessness they applied there for aid.

"So far, no one has been turned away. The girls who had employment started a fund sufficient to pay a small daily wage to the unemployed women until permanent positions could be secured. In this way the employed girls became the employers of the unemployed.

"The splendid pluck of these girls who spend their lunch hours, their evenings and any spare time they can manage, to scout for positions for their needy sisters has given me one of the greatest thrills of my life.

Miss Anne Tracey Morgan. This photograph is the most recent picture of Miss Morgan, who in an exclusive interview tells of the necessity of helping the unemployed in this country.

"I was in Europe, when the war broke out," continued Miss Morgan, "and passed through some truly harrowing experiences. A former Prefect of Police took me in my car to the environs of Paris where the work of fortification was going on. I stood in the trenches and saw myraids of marching soldiers.

"I had the horrible experience, on another trip, of seeing a young French boy shot to death in the presence of his aged parents, and the added agony of seeing the home of the old couple burned.

"I tell you this," continued Miss Morgan, "because I want you to know that, while I experienced at close range some of the horrors of the cruel war, and while I will continue to do all in my power to help the needy in Europe, I still maintain that Americans must look to the care of their own first, and then do all they can for the alleviation of suffering abroad.

"To help carry on the work of the girls at Vacation Headquarters, "Pandora's Box" is to be given in the Seventh Regiment Armory on December 4 and 5. The ballet, which will be danced by one hundred debutantes and young society mattrons, meets here this week for rehearsal.

"When the necessity has past for Vacation War Relief Work, it will be discontinued, but the vacation committee will always hold itself elastic that it can turn its forces to help in any crisis.

"I do not mean to strike a pessimistic note," concluded Miss Morgan, "but first and foremost, Charity begins at home."

And then Miss Morgan hurried away to keep the rest of the long list of engagements in which her various charities were concerned.

HUNDREDS SAVED FROM PAIN OF A SURGEON'S KNIFE

The first symptoms of nervous debility will show in that portion of the body which is weakest at the time the ailment set in. Consequently, if you have pains in your back it does not necessarily follow that your kidneys are diseased. Maybe the trouble is temporary, caused by nervous debility, owing to the fact that the line of communication between the brain and the kidneys has become deranged.

If this is the case, the cause can be quickly removed by Tona Vita, which will once more put the brain in direct charge of the kidneys and other organs, and nature herself will relieve the diseased condition. Hundreds of users of Tona Vita have been restored to health when they thought they were suffering from some organic disease that would necessitate a trip to the operating table.

Tona Vita, which is now being largely used, can be obtained at any of the leading drug stores in Boston.

A few of the symptoms to which users of Tona Vita have testified they were suffering from, are: Loss of appetite, poor memory, loss of weight, morbid imagination, sense of heaviness about the bowels, pains in the back and spine, numbness in the limbs and that general run-down feeling. Any of these symptoms can denote nervous debility and can quickly be relieved by the use of the new national tonic.

Wagon Backs Off Wharf Into Water

An Adams Express Company team on an early trip to T Wharf today attempted to turn around on the wharf and backed over the edge. J. J. Sullivan, the driver, leaped for safety. But the wagon went over, pulled the horses after it and before the police boat Watchman could get to the spot one horse had drowned. The other was saved.

MRS. LAWSON AMONG WINNERS AT DOG SHOW

Mrs. Arnold Lawson's Sikdar Princess won first honors for females at the specialty show of the French Bulldog Club of New England at Horticultural Hall, which concludes today.

As a result of the judging by Harry W. Lacy, the Haworth kennels' (Mrs. Mabel J. Riddell, owner) celebrated Dr. DeLuxe went through the winners' class for dogs.

The most talked of matter of the show, however, was the sale of Dr. DeDuxe by Mrs. Riddell to Mrs. T. W. Larsen of Newburgh, N. Y., the owner of the extensive Viking kennels. The price paid for the great Dr. DeDuxe was not made known, but inasmuch as $2,000 had been refused for the "Frenchie," it is believed that the sale price is in excess of that amount.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Lustre with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. It removes every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—ADVERTISEMENT.

100 POCKETS IN WOMAN'S DRESS AT NURSES' FAIR

A woman with one hundred pockets in her dress will be the big feature of the fair to be held at the Hotel Brunswick one week from today by the Boston City Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association, for the loan fund for graduate nurses desirous of training at the Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Miss Annette Sullivan, superintendent of the Malden Contagious Hospital, will be dressed in a large gingham dress covered with pockets, each pocket will contain a prize. A small fee will be asked for those wishing to try their luck.

There will be many other features, an orange grab tree, a candy table, fancy articles, tea and food tables. There will also be a large oriental booth.

In the evening Dr. Robert M. Green of Harvard Medical School will give an illustrated lecture on "Belgium and the War Zone."

The officers of the association are: Miss Mary M. Riddle, R. N., superintendent of the Newton Hospital; Charlotte W. Dana, R. N., superintendent of Boston Lying-in Hospital, and Alice N. Carter, superintendent of the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital, vice-presidents, Elizabeth C. Fairbanks, superintendent of the Convalescents' Home of the Boston City Hospital, secretary, and Emma M. Nichols, superintendent of nurses and matrons of the Boston City Hospital, treasurer.

The candy table will be in charge of Ella C. Daly, day superintendent of the South Department of the City Hospital. Miss Ursula N. Noyes and Miss Mary A. McMahan of the City Hospital will be in charge of the grab tree; Oriental tree, Miss Laura B. Bemis, social worker of the Boston Lying-in Hospital; food table, Miss Charlotte Dana, Grace L. McIntyre and Elizabeth C. Fairbank; tea table, Miss Elizabeth C. Farley of the staff of head nurses, who will be assisted by Miss Mary B. Gallivan and Miss Rose C. Moran of the Haymarket Relief Station. The fair will be held for one day only.

CONTINUE HUNT FOR GILLIS, LOST FOOTBALL STAR

Disappointment and chagrin over the defeat of his football team is now believed to explain the strange disappearance of Joseph A. Gillis, eighteen years old, of Medford.

The Medford team, of which Gillis is captain, was beaten 13 to 0. It was the first victory in years for Melrose over Medford. Friends of Gillis declare he brooded over the loss of the game and believe it accounts for his disappearance November 7.

The State police are still searching for young Gillis and have been aided by the Medford Boys' Club, of which he was a member. Searching parties have beaten up nearly every part of Middlesex fells in search of him. A new all-invalid with paralysis of the lungs, nerves and heart complications

FOSTER MOTHER FORCED TO GIVE UP LITTLE GIRL

By rule of the State Board of Charity, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Fish of Chelsea, a village near Bridgewater, will be compelled to surrender Bertha Goldstein, whom they have had in care since she was a baby.

The girl is a State ward, taken by Mrs. Fish from a Jewish institution. They never legally adopted her because of a State law compelled the State Board to see that every child under its care should be educated in the religion of its parents.

Lately a man and his wife of the same religion as the child's parents offered to adopt her. The officers of the board felt they could not refuse. They made a demand of Mr. and Mrs. Fish for the child.

"I have brought Bertha up," said Mrs. Fish today, "with all the care that I would have bestowed on a child of my own. I have watched over her as a mother and have begun to see affection in the hope that I might adopt her my own. Naturally, I am heartbroken."

Bertha had never known that she was not the daughter of Mrs. Fish.

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS—25 CENT DANDERINE

Save your hair! Make it soft, fluffy, lustrous and beautiful.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—then fast growing. Don't stay bald—get rid of dandruff. Procure a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected and is full of life, lustre and beauty—that's all.—ADVERTISEMENT.

SWEETHEART OF GIRL VICTIM DENIES PART IN HER BURIAL

some have tried to paint me that I would be walking the streets of Hoosick Falls free to go and come without any bonds binding me. That's what the people seem to overlook. They have put me down and called me everything, but they don't seem to stop and ask themselves how it is that I am at liberty.

"Now, it hasn't all been smooth sailing for me. I've had my part to bear. Believe me, I have worried and lost just as much sleep as Millie's own folks have, and I'll bet I feel every bit as bad today, but who cared for Ambrose Bridge's feelings or for Ambrose Bridge? I'm not looking for pity, or sympathy. I saw what I had to do and I did it to the best of my ability.

"I refuse to attack or condemn anybody. My aim is to help Mildred's people all in my power because they need help and sympathy. God knows I have strained to help them and to help Mildred, too, but there were things over which I had no control.

"It was not a bluff when I said I wanted to see her once more at the funeral. I would have given anything in the world to see poor little Millie just for a last look, but it wasn't proper I suppose, and while I was anxious to go to her funeral I don't blame her folks not to want it.

"I didn't go to her grave. I decided I hadn't better as folks would gossip. So I have stifled a lot of my feelings and helped all that was in my power. I have only kindly feelings toward Millie's mother and grandmother and the rest.

"Where would they have been in this case but for me? How far would they have gone? Why, man, they'd never have learned what happened if I hadn't worked hard and left no stone unturned. What do you suppose I went to Boston for and dug around there a week without finding a clew? I went for her people.

"And Katie Michaud did fine to tell as she did. She deserves credit. It was good. That clergyman deserves credit too. I didn't know a thing about her confession, only what I have read in the papers. She didn't tell me anything after they were arrested and brought back from Boston.

"I don't know what she told the officials. I don't want to know it. I simply am glad to think they found Millie and that she has a proper resting place now. I'll bet that is a comfort to her folks. I know it is to me.

"The only thing I read in the papers that said a good word for me was the statement that I had done all I could to help the authorities. Everything else was prejudiced. I was knocked down and trampled on. I doesn't count now that Millie has been found.

"Why did I invite Millie to the fair? I cannot answer that or other things just now. You seem to accuse me. There is no fair with Millie.

FATHER SEES NURSE.

Mildred Sullivan's father interviewed Katie Michaud at the local jail last evening. What took place between the two was not told, but dramatic.

It was the first time that they had met since Mildred had introduced Katherine as a new acquaintance at the opening day of the Presque Isle fair. Mrs. Sullivan explained to her father that Ambrose Bridge had made her acquainted with Miss Michaud.

At their first meeting Mr. Sullivan called Mildred aside and asked all about Katie. "Why," answered Mildred, "Miss Michaud is a lovely girl. Ambrose took her and she invited me to stop with her at Mrs. Southard's."

"Be careful," said Mr. Sullivan, "and be sure to come to your aunt's."

Miss Michaud's confession last night explained the fate that befell Millie and the part she played in it, even to the midnight burial in the woods.

It was little wonder, then, that Mildred's father and her accused nurse showed mingled timidity and embarrassment.

Mr. Sullivan had tried all Tuesday and Wednesday to gain the interview. Sheriff Bryson said the order of County Attorney Archibald was to permit nobody to talk with Katherine at the jail but her counsel.

"But I'll see what I can do for you," added Sheriff Bryson. "I'll have a talk with Mr Archibald and try to get his permission."

NURSE ILL IN CELL.

"I wish you would," said Mr. Sullivan. "My wife and I are anxious to hear what Millie said before she died. We don't want to pry into or hurt the government's case. I just want to ask her if my daughter said anything."

Before leaving the jail Mr. Sullivan made sworn statement.

It developed on tell what Miss Michaud told him. The prosecution is guarding every possible scrap of Miss Michaud's remarkable story, which will be reserved for the trial.

Miss Michaud is ill. Her spirits are crushed. She is offended because her uncle and brother surrendered her at the request of the county officials, who didn't want so vital a witness large at this critical stage of proceedings.

When Miss Michaud reached the jail Tuesday evening after the protracted conference with County Attorney Archibald in his office across the street, she appeared confident. She entered the portals of the red brick building reluctantly. She was assigned to a cell in the women's wing on the landing just below where Mr. Lionel E. Dudley, the alleged murder principal; Alice Pelletier and her seventeen-year-old brother Perley are quartered.

The first thing Katie did was to remove her outer shirt and hang it on the cell window as a screen. She reflected her aversion to the situation. There are no curtains on the jail windows.

Katie can see the upper tiers of cells where Alice Pelletier and her brother are, and directly across from Alice, with but a three-foot passageway between, is the cell of Dr. Dudley. They talk across.

A relative of the doctors is having meals sent from a nearby restaurant to him and Alice Pelletier and what they leave Perley, the boy prisoner, and alleged grave digger, gets. In addition to the jail fare, Katie Michaud has no special attentions. The rebuff with her former companions is beyond closing.

GETS EXERCISE IN JAIL.

Dr. Dudley has his cell liberally stocked with books and magazines, yet he reads little, it is said. He is reported not to have been sleeping regularly of late. Tidings from the region of bars and locks are to the effect that Dr. Dudley has been acting eccentrically. Every night he has spent much of his time scraping his cell chair up and down the wall the full length of his arms above his head, scores and scores of times, no doubt, for exercise.

He had a touching interview with his sister, Mrs. Smith. She was downcast when she left the jail. College and professional friends have called on him the past two days. Dr. Dudley has plenty of friends, though his supporters are more numerous here than in Presque Isle, where he practiced.

"How are you feeling, Doc?" asked one friend who belongs to the same college fraternity. "Tip top," replied Dudley cheerfully. "I've gained four pounds here since Saturday, but it isn't the life."

Dr. Dudley is reported to have received friendly letters and letters of sympathy and some that are not sympathetic, since his incarceration.

The November term of the Aroostook County Grand Jury promises to be memorable because of the importance of the cases and the number of the docket. The incoming Grand Jury will have to pass on a grist of 150 cases, several of them murder cases.

No deliberations will begin next Tuesday. Many witnesses, not a few from Boston, are to be mustered in as Mildred Sullivan case.

MRS. EDITH SULLIVAN, MOTHER OF VICTIM IN MAINE MYSTERY

ARRAIGNMENT DELAYED AS STATE FINDS NEW CLEWS

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 12.—The postponement of the arraignment of Dr. Lionel E. Dudley and Alice and Perley Pelltier, which was originally set for yesterday, was today believed to be the result of new discoveries in the case.

Preliminary analysis of the internal organs made at Bowdoin College is declared to have given the county authorities several new lines upon which they wish to work before even partially showing their hand in Court.

The authorities today would set no date for the arraignment. It may wait for several days pending the completion of the elaborate poison tests.

In the belief that poison, probably strychnine, was administered to hasten the girl's death and make it coincide with the midnight hours chosen for her rude burial, this poison hunt will be vigorously pursued.

Katie Michaud has been given another long grilling by the police, who are following up points made in her confession with new questions, particularly as to the suspected use of drugs on the seventeen-year-old victim. A stenographer has a sheaf of notes covering the most recent questioning of Miss Michaud.

MAKE ELABORATE TESTS.

Professor Whittier of Bowdoin College reported today it was too early to make a complete report on the poison hunt. He is just in the midst of an elaborate analysis.

Miss Michaud told the authorities, in adding to her original narrative, that Dr. Dudley was intoxicated when he treated Mildred Sullivan just before she died. Likewise she said:

"What a conditron frightened us so that I begged Dr. Dudley to call another doctor. He replied that it would be no use, that no doctor could save her."

Miss Michaud was required to tell her full story over to Deputy Marden Lawlis and County Attorney Bernard Archibald. The authorities are carefully guarding her story and hope to be able to keep it secret until the Grand Jury investigation.

In line with this plan, she will not be asked to go on the stand at the preliminary hearings. The county attorney believes he has sufficient evidence for a prima facie case against the defendants, and will reveal no more evidence than becomes necessary.

FUR COAT IS FOUND.

Today's developments brought to light another feature of the case—the fact that the State has in its possession the fur coat which was wrapped about the nightgown-clad body of the Sullivan girl on the night automobile ride which preceded her midnight burial in the woods.

That the body, after Mildred died, was wrapped in a fur coat and hidden in an entry in the Pelltier home till the automobile came to take it away has been rumored heretofore. Early in the case also the authorities found a fur coat under a pile of railroad ties near the trotting park.

But there was nothing at that time to show that this coat was the one used. The authorities held on to their find; and now the confession of Katherine Michaud shows, it is understood, that the coat found under the railroad ties was the one in which Mildred's body was wrapped.

The pile of ties where the coat was found is between the wood lot where the grave lies and the Pelltier home. It is only a short distance from the location of the grave.

A new version of the midnight burial came to light today, as an explanation of the arrest of Perley Pelltier, seventeen-year-old brother of Alice Pelltier.

COLDS, HEADACHES, SOUR STOMACH? REGULATE YOUR BOWELS--10 CENTS

You men and women who get a cold easily—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy stomach.

CLERGYMAN DISCUSSES SERMON AT BIER OF MILDRED

"Like as a father pitieth his children, even so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him."

—Psalm CIII.—Verse 13.

This was the text taken by the Rev. J. L. Hess of the Presbyterian Church at Houlton in his eulogy of Mildred Sullivan at her funeral services in Houlton.

Mr. Hess, before the funeral startled a group of listeners by saying: "The Presbyterian Church of Houlton is responsible for Mildred Sullivan's death."

No phase of this remarkable case has caused any more discussion than this declaration of the reverend gentleman.

By The Rev. A. E. George.

Mildred's body has been found in the lonely woods.

Soiled hands doubtless laid her there.

A year ago she was a happy, smiling girl of sixteen. She was thinking of the future and what it would bring to her. Every young life likes to look ahead.

In that small town she had her own acquaintances. With these she mingled. Some of them pretended to be real friends. Probably there were friends such as many a girl has put up with because she had no opportunity of widening her circle of acquaintance.

The church, according to Pastor Hess, was not interested in her. He said so at her funeral. She is dead and the church is responsible. These are awful words to say. Nothing was done by the church to prevent this young girl from becoming interested in what would drag her down.

In many a New England town, there are a number of churches which are greatly interested in the young people and are safeguarding them. But these churches are not the old-fashioned ones.

They do not give the cold shoulder to the young girl who does not wear the best clothes, to the girl who often has to wear a dress for several years before she can buy a new one. So I say, these are awful words of Pastor Hess. They are nevertheless true in many respects.

Mildred might have been alive doing some good social work for the church, had the church taken an interest in her.

This is the sad part, but not the saddest of this tragedy.

Rev. John L. Hess.

Saddest words of all: "It might have been."

Had some good Christian woman put her arm around the neck of Mildred and said to her: "Mildred, come with me and I will do you good."

Just think how those words would have fallen upon her.

Some one else was whispering other things to her. She did not listen at first, but no one said anything else to her. The church was cold and did not seem to be interested in her. She felt that. Then those other voices came about her and her willingness to have a good time. But those voices were not sanctified by the church.

When a little girl, she went to Sunday School and took home a small card, bearing the very words of the text which her pastor preached from at her funeral.

"Like as a father pitieth his children, even so the Lord pitieth those that fear Him."

What a beautiful verse this is! Turn it over again and again in your mind. No human being would say those words. It must have been some Greater One who put it into the mind of the psalmist to say them.

But Mildred said them as a child. Now that she has gone, it is well to think them over. When we make mistakes, there is One that pardons—Him. We are not responsible for our mistakes so much as for our neglects. The church neglected Mildred, according to Pastor Hess. Somebody then is the church is to blame for her death.

No other girl should wander away in Houlton now. The rebuke of Pastor Hess is too severe to die out for some time to come. May it awaken the churches everywhere to what must be done for the young. Many of them are keeping young girls interested in the good things of life and they are having a good time with the good things. Churches should make good things interesting. That is their chief work among young people. If churches make good things dull, they may expect girls and boys to go down hill. But when you can make good things attractive, as you can to young people, this is one of the greatest things to be done by the country churches.

Poor Mildred! She will be soon forgotten. Her short life, however, will make every girl think that there is something in the good of life to keep us all busy.

"The Lord is pitiful and of tender mercy. He will abundantly pardon."

Three Things Necessary in Treating Skin Diseases

Cuticura, the well-known remedy for Eczema, pimples and other skin troubles, does three things: It stops the itching, it forms a light covering over the sore places on the skin, thus excluding air and water, and it sets up the healing process. In many instances you can see and feel a distinct improvement in less than twenty-four hours. Cuticura is such a good remedy that a list of such ingredients it contains is printed upon each box. People who buy a remedy are entitled to know what it is made of, so they can talk to their doctor about it if they desire. Secret remedies are going out of fashion, and Cuticura was among the first to show just what it is made of. Get a 10c box of your druggist and try it. The 25c size contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size.

Said the Man From St. Gall To the Lace Curtain Buyer:

"The situation in St. Gall (Switzerland) is very serious. The men are doing military duty for their country—which is neutral—while England, who has supplied us with net and muslins, has cut off her supplies. The reserve stock of nets and muslins is very scant, so that the important lace curtain industry in Switzerland is practically at a standstill, and will be for a long time to come."

The above holds true also in the case of Courtrai, Belgium, the centre of the net industry supplying the net for French lace curtains. No nets, no curtains, so we cannot look to France for much in that line; thus the two greatest lace curtain centres are at a standstill so far as production is concerned.

Despite this deplorable condition we are pleased to announce that through foresight and liberal purchases some time ago we have one of the largest stocks of foreign lace curtains that we have ever carried. These are our own direct importation, made expressly for us, and were bought to such good advantage that in many instances we can sell them at lower prices than prevailed a year ago.

The Swiss Curtains Include:

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

POEHLER SETS UP NEW BOWLING RECORD IN MATCH WITH THE CHAUNCY TEAM

SAYLOR AFTER VICTORY HERE OVER MANDOT

By RINGSIDE.

BOSTON Hatic followers will be given an opportunity to see Joe Mandot for the first time on Tuesday evening, when the crack Southern lightweight battles Young Saylor in a twelve round bout at the Atlas Club.

Almost from his entry into the lightweight ranks, Mandot has been classed among the top-notchers. He has a record worthy of consideration and one which includes some of the most foremost in the 133 pound class today. Among others he has defeated Owen Moran, Jack Redmond, Charley White, Pal Moore, Joe Rivers, Grover Hayes, Ad Wolgast and Joe Coster. He engaged in a ten round no-decision bout with Willie Ritchie and drew with Matty Baldwin in eight rounds.

SAYLOR and Mandot are not strangers to each other. They have met twice before. On the first occasion Mandot knocked out Saylor in fifteen rounds, but later they fought a ten round no-decision bout. Saylor is a much improved boxer since then—two years ago—and is expected to make things interesting for his southern rival next Tuesday.

SAYLOR is pretty well known here. He engaged in two bouts in this city, the first of which he won from Matting Nelson when the great Dane was booked in a series of contests here, and the second he lost on a foul to Jack Britton in six rounds two years ago last September.

FOR weeks the Atlas A. A. have been dickering with Mandot and when they finally secured him consent to a match with Matty Baldwin they felt sure they had struck a lucky vein.

But like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky came the information that Matty Baldwin would be unable to keep his date with the southern lightweight champion.

FOR a while a lightweight contest was thought out of the question until Young Saylor came into evidence through his manager, Ray Bronson. The Three A Club had to come through with some alluring inducements to win the match away from the Terre Haute pounders, and Boston sports are considered mighty lucky in having the chance to witness this contest. The conditions will prevail at next Tuesday night's meeting of the Atlas that Tuesday night's meeting of the Atlas last Tuesday night's meeting of the Atlas that Tuesday night's meeting of the Atlas last Tuesday night.

THE club will strengthen the feature event with a first class set of preliminaries and a semi-final of eight rounds.

MIKE (Twin) SULLIVAN, who still clings his letters, "World's Welterweight Champion" officially, "started ring life anew. For the first time in his long career with the Tremont Temple, the Cambridge veteran will be led by a manager. Mike has put all his ring affairs into the hands of Walter D. Blaney, a Boston man, and if any ambitious boy would wished to sign up Mike in the future he will have to see Blaney first.

* * *

SULLIVAN'S first battle under his new manager will be in Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, next Monday evening, when he will meet Bobby Donahue in a twelve round bout. Mike will leave Boston tomorrow at 1 o'clock. He is in the best of condition after several months of strenuous training and will weigh in the vicinity of 134 pounds when he enters the ring.

* * *

MARTIN JULIAN, who recently took charge of Johnny Daly, the crack New York battler, is anxious to get his boy against Kid Williams, the bantamweight champion, before the Boston club. Since taking Daly in tow, Julian has put the pugnacious through a rigorous course of training and is willing to box him three times a week if the occasions present themselves.

* * *

ACCORDING to Julian, Daly lost a close decision to Williams at Baltimore some two years ago and the manager believes he would have beaten the present champion if he had been handled properly at the time. Daly is also willing to box Benny Coulon at Fort Wayne, Ind., when the former champion was himself.

Johansen-Weideman in Finish Mat Bout

Elmer Johansen, the Norwegian heavyweight wrestler, is in splendid shape for his finish match with Fritz Weideman, the German, which will be decided this evening at the Grand Opera House. The style will be catch-as-catch-can, best two out of three falls.

Johansen's great work heretofore has made a great hit with the fans and his defeat of Perolli perfectly established him. Weideman has not been seen here in two years, but he is going better than ever and this means that Johansen is going to have his hands full to win.

Burns Wins Award Over Joe Phillips

MANCHESTER, N. H. Nov. 12.—Larry Burns of Lawrence won a clean-cut decision over Joe Phillips of Providence in twelve rounds at the Granite State Club. Joe Morgan of Manchester beat Fighting Joe Carroll of Lawrence in eight rounds.

POEHLER HANGS UP RECORD IN CHAUNCY MATCH

AFTER one of the most exciting struggles ever witnessed in the City League, Chauncy and Carruth stood even stephen—two points apiece. The match abounded in brilliant individual work, Paul Poehler breaking the three-string record with 373. Two other marks—individual single and team total—were approached within two pins, Larkin rolled a single of 139, while the Carruth team slashed the wood for a total of 1613. Chauncy was not far behind, coming within one point of the 1600 mark.

While the match brought out some fine individual rolling, so did it show some very poor work. Jack Taylor could not get by the eighties all night, turning in a three-string card of 258. Rouse, Pelleran and Griffin also turned in strings in the eighties, but they offset this by passing the 100 mark in their other two attempts.

The final string went down to the last, two boxes of the rival anchormen before it was settled. Christopher got a split in one of his, but Poehler was more than equal to his task, twice chalking up a mark.

CARRUTH outscored Chauncy in the first string, toppling the nines for 561 against its opponent's 507. Beatty's aggregation reversed things in the middle session, winning out by 547 to 519. The final string also went to Chauncy, 544 to 532.

The match was attended by the largest crowd of the season. The space in back of the bowlers was packed solid, while the "fans" stood two and three deep on both sides of the two alleys on which the rolling took place.

WHILE the records were flying at the Carruth alleys, Casino upset the "dope" by taking three points from Boylston, and Adams cleaned up at the Murray lanes. Both Casino and Boylston rolled over 1,500. Adams Square turned in 1,494, but the Murray team was away off form, falling twelve points below 1,400.

AS the result of the matches, Adams Square went into a tie for second place with Boylston, while Casino tied Murray for fifth place. Chauncy still leads by six points.

A glance over the circuit shows a decided falling off in the individual work although some bowlers reaped large profits by big pinfalls. The best scores of the night were: Poehler, Chauncy, 371; Larkin, Carruth, 354; Howard, Chauncy, 337; Thornton, Carruth, 330; Walsh, Chauncy, 329; Christopher, Carruth, 328; Grove, Casino, 329; McLean, Casino, 327; Brown, Boylston, 314; Hartford, Murray, 319; Schultz, Adams Square, 319; Hennessey, Adams Square, 312; O'Brien, Boylston, 309; Holmes, Boylston, 312; Felton, Adams Square, 306; Griffin, Chauncy, 294.

C. E. RILEY & CO. and the Wellington, Sears & Co. first and second teams rolled in the City Bowling League, tackle pretty stiff opponents at the weekly meeting this evening, but there is little chance of them coming out on the short end.

CREUTZ, with a three-string total of 320, won the weekly rolloff at the Adams Square alleys. Hennessy was second with 307 and Mahan third with 306. Then in the following order were: Brown, 299; Bowker, 296; Riordan, 295; Hall, 291; Bowers, 289; Dyson, 278; McMahon, 276; Bradley, 275. Three prizes to the value of $19 and a consolation was divided among the bowlers. The next rolloff will be held on November 17.

* * *

MANY high scores were turned in at the New American alleys on Summer street yesterday, not the least of all being a single of 114 by Miss Mabel Austin of Roxbury. Then there was Carey of the Casino team, who rolled 339 in eight consecutive strings.

"They will have to go to work and earn a living."

Club owners consider it extravagant to carry twenty-five players on one team. But have you ever heard of a team that carried twenty-five parent-to-goodness ball players?

The American League could wreak terrible vengeance on the Feds by selling them the Naps.

As we understand it, the team that wins the Notre Dame-Carlisle game will win the football championship of Comiskey Park.

Unlike some football coaches the baseball scribe has a varied line of attack. When he fails to gain space by selling the Cubs to Prominent Chicago Business Men he gains a column by selling them to the Federal League.

All hope of seeing Mike Gibbons box Jimmy Clabby in a local arena before the anti-boxing law goes into effect was dismissed when a message was received from Gibbons that it will be impossible for him to take on the match this month.

TIGER SHAKE-UP IN ENDMEN FOR GAME WITH ELI

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—Princeton's football team held its last long scrimmage of the season in the new Stadium and celebrated the occasion by a renewed spirit which bodes no easy time for Yale next Saturday.

Three touchdowns favored the varsity at the end of the fifty minutes of fierce scrimmage against the scrubs, and at no time did the regulars let the scrubs get dangerous with their Yale formations.

Only one new disappointment crept in to cloud the encouragement of a really spirited practice. Fred Trenkmann was forced to leave the scrimmage because of wrenching an old injury.

The extent of damage done could not be known, but it is feared that he will be troubled for the rest of the week, if he is able to get back at all.

The rivalry between McLean and Bigler for tackle was strengthened again and it is impossible to predict which man will get the call from the coaches for the opening of the Yale game, but it is very probable that each one will play at some period of the contest.

A rearrangement of the ends into new pairs came as the result of last Saturday's game at Cambridge. Higley has replaced Lamberton on the first pair and is now coupled with Brown, while Lamberton and Shea make the second pair.

THE FORTUNES OF FANNY

She Overhears a Conversation Showing Her She Is Not Wanted

Fanny, weary and sick at heart, tries to help Stella trim a hat, but with little success.

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER V.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

CONVERSATION languished at the Jacobs' supper table that night.

The reason for this was that the family were hungry. They did not belong to the class who observes the canalities of life and wait for each other to be served. They believed that when one was hungry he should eat as soon as food was placed in front of him—an opinion shared by all creatures of the lower animal kingdom.

Mr. Jacobs put a liberal portion of sausage, sauerkraut and potatoes on each plate, heaping the food in a steaming mass, then deposited the plate in front of the person for whom it was intended, rushing far across the table to do this. And the recipient "fell to" with more noise and unction than politeness.

Fanny, as guest, was served first, but she ate little. The sights and sounds of eating, coupled with the recollections of Hermann's attentions, deprived her of appetite. She ate as much as she could, however, rather than wound the feelings of these well-meaning hosts. When the first edge of hunger had been dulled conversation began.

"Gee! you're some cook, Fan," Stella declared, biting into one of the light, flaky biscuit. "Ma can't cook like this."

"I like Ma's biscuits better," announced Mr. Jacobs. "These is too light. There ain't no substance into 'em."

"Well I think these is the best biscuit I ever set teeth into," remarked Hermann gallantly, helping himself to another. "Fanny's all right."

AN ADORING GLANCE.

He cast at the embarrassed girl a glance that was meant to be adoring, and again she longed to escape his coarse admiration. Perhaps Stella suspected her desire, or perhaps she decided to make use of her. For when Hermann suggested, as last night, that Fanny might like to "go somewhere," his sister objected with decision.

"No, she ain't goin' anywhere, Hermann. So there! I want her to stay to-night and give me a hand with a hat I'm goin' to trim. I bought it today and want to wear it right away. You're handy with trimmin' hats, ain't you?" she queried, turning to Fanny.

Fanny forced a smile. "I'm not very good at sewing, I'm afraid," she said. "But I can trim my own hats after a fashion—and I will be glad to help you if I can."

Hermann frowned and muttered to his sister something about wishing she would mind her own business. Mr. Jacobs' disapproving accents were a welcome interruption to the interchange.

"You girls ought to help Mommer with the dishes before you do anything else," he averred. "Girls nowadays ain't thinkin' of anything but finery and fellers. I don't see why Mommer should stand there washin' dishes when two husky young wimmen's here to do it for her."

"All right," Stella assented sullenly. "Fanny and me'll wash the dishes for her."

Fanny came quickly forward to the sink at which Hermann had combed his hair an hour ago, and in which the dishes were now stacked. She swallowed hard and tried to think of something else. But the experiences of the past twenty-four hours, the lack of such nourishment as she was accustomed to, the longing for her old surroundings and fear as to her future, combined to make her feel physically faint. She worked rapidly and steadily, but in silence—a fact which Stella observed and mentioned.

Indeed, each member of the family rallied her upon her evident depression. She tried to laugh at the unrefined jokes, toying with relief that after urging her in vain to go out with him the son of the house went by himself, slamming the door vigorously behind him.

At last Fanny and Stella were alone in the latter's room, and Fanny sewed to the best of her ability. She had spoken truly when she acknowledged that she was not an adept with her needle—for her clothing had usually been bought ready-made, and any necessary alterations had been performed by her grandmother. Still, Fanny was rather deft with her fingers and did well enough tonight to escape Stella's ridicule—a weapon the lonely girl had already learned to dread. But at 10 o'clock her head was aching so furiously that she summoned courage to speak the words that had trembled on her lips for an hour.

"I am sorry, Stella," she stammered, "but I am feeling a little sick. If you don't mind I think I'll go to bed."

A SOUND OF VOICES

Half an hour later, just as Fanny Hedden was falling asleep on the parlor couch she was aroused to vivid consciousness of her surroundings by the sound of voices on the other side of the folding doors separating the room in which she lay from that occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs. Stella had evidently gone in to tell her parents "Good night!" and spoke loudly.

"Well I, for one, am tired of her!" she was saying. "She looks more like a funeral in her black clothes, and she's glum as an owl. Considerin' she don't pay board here, she might at least have finished trimmin' my hat."

In stentorian tones the father agreed with his daughter. "Right you are!" he exclaimed. "Mommer meant well in takin' her in, but I've got all I can support as it is—without runnin' a free lodgin' and boardin' house."

Mrs. Jacobs broke in plaintively. "Yes, Popper's right; I made a mistake. I hope she'll go soon, for she sure is settin' her cap for our Hermann. If she don't get work tomorrer, she's not tryin' for anything except to catch a husband. That's what I say!"

Good-nights were exchanged, and soon each of the two had sunk to righteous slumber. But in the front parlor Fanny Hedden lay with wide-open and aching eyes through the long hours until morning.

Her Husband's Widow

A Thrilling Story of Romance, Adventure and Intrigue, in Which a Beautiful Young Bride Plays the Part of the Heroine.

By EDMUND B. D'AUVERGNE

Dramatic translation, and all other rights reserved. Copyright, 1913, A. C. McClurg & Co. (Chicago Daily News special rights in U. S. held by International News Service.)

CHAPTER XX.

LOOKING back on that scene in the strange lawyer's office, Leslie wondered how she had been able to thank him for his pronouncement, and even to press upon him the fee (a which he smilingly declared he was hardly entitled for stating the law as it was known to everybody. With unconscious irony he even expressed the hope that he had set her mind at rest.

She had found herself next at Charing Cross station without at all remembering how she got there.

She knew that she had a great deal of thinking to get through in the next few days. All her relationships were in solution. She hardly knew as yet by what name she should call herself. She passed her hand despairingly over her forehead. The future had to be faced—there were other people than herself to consider. There was Victor, there was Oswald; above all, there was her boy.

She must get away—somewhere out of sight, where she was not known, where she could not be surprised by her husband—by Oswald, she meant. Yet she must see the boy again. If she was no longer Oswald's wife she was still Jimmy's mother. A spasm of pain contracted her face.

This was the bitterest drop in her cup of sorrow. For all her love and devotion the same ghastly shadow of his cradle which had shadowed the whole of her girlhood. The fear that could never be cruel to Jimmy—could never make him suffer for her ignorance—her heart cried out. Yet she knew that it would. She had a vision of society as a grinding Juggernaut, ordering that its altar should be fed with the bodies of living children.

A wire would bring Jimmy and his nurse up to London. They could stay there for one night, and for them to-night she could decide upon some plan of action.

She dispatched the telegram summoning them by the 3 o'clock train. Jimmy's life, she knew, was planned on the most scientific principles. He lived by a time-table difficult to unset. Never had the hour of his feeding varied by so much as a minute. The nurse only suffered him to have at certain specified hours.

While she wandered in and out of the station an advertisement caught her eye. It displayed an old man in a plaid pointing to a hillside purple with heather. Yes, Scotland would be an ideal place of retreat.

She was glad that she had come to Oban. Her eyes, wearied with the glare of the East, were grateful for the soft green turf and the vivid color of the trees.

She dispatched that letter to Oswald and breathed a little more freely. She could reckon on a respite.

She wandered alone about the Highland hills, and was amazed at the rush of gray Dunolly, carelessly reviewing her position. She realized now that she had not been so much surprised as dismayed by the lawyer's answer to her question.

WHY HAD HE NOT TOLD HER THE WHOLE TRUTH?

Why, then, had Steele not understood her? For the reasons possibly that had made him so strongly urge her to keep the whole matter a secret from Varney. Consideration for her. She could have laughed outright. It was only consideration for her, he had said, that he had not appraised her that he was still alive. His consideration had brought her to this pass. She clasped her knee and, setting her teeth looked up in mute anger at the heavens.

The trapdoor which she had felt shaking beneath her when she saw him at Jerusalem had opened beneath her. She was an outcast—a social pariah—technically, she supposed, a felon. She had unwittingly married a second time while her husband was alive, and that, it seemed, was an offense which the English law found itself powerless to forgive.

It was vain to plead that she had acted in perfect good faith and innocence—here was a case for which the lawmakers and lawgivers of her native land professed themselves unable to find a remedy. Since she was Victor's wife she could not be Oswald's. She could never live with Oswald Varney again. She flinched with shame at the mere thought.

It was her plain duty to reveal the whole truth to Oswald. But—what of Jimmy?

A mother's first duty is to her child, especially a case that child is a helpless infant. If she published her shame she exposed him to the consequences. Her standards were conventional enough, but even to her unethical conscience it did not seem right to raise her mind by a confession which would injure an innocent third party.

What line would Oswald take? She stopped and stared fixedly at the sea, her brows knitted, her lips tight pressed together. She knew well how his pride would be revolted by the blot on his escutcheon, by the flaw in his better title. For herself she did not care—he could put her away, as the old phrase had it, even if he offered and did not want her, but she would not go without her boy.

He would hardly publish the matter and disinherit his own son. She understood the English law of descent and inheritance. Of some things a man could dispose by will, of other things he could not. Her son, as heir of his property would obtain a life estate.

If it was her duty to leave Oswald, she supposed it was equally her duty to return to Victor. She obeyed her only stirring and took out a letter she had received that morning from Oswald. It was written in a pointed, protesting, penitent vein that she had already perused. Now the explanation dawned upon her.

Ancient Art Revealed by Finds at Taxila, an Indian City Taken by Alexander the Great

A Combination of Indian and Hellenistic Features — The Base of a Parthian Shrine in the Courtyard of a Building in Sir Kap, the Middle City of Taxila.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

AMONG the most interesting of recent discoveries in archaeological researches incidents of human antiquities are the finds in the ancient city of Taxila in the Punjab, India.

This city existed long before the time of the Macedonian conqueror, Alexander the Great, and was one of the towns taken by him during his expedition to and beyond the River Indus.

Photographs of many of the things unearthed at Taxila by Sir J. H. Marshall are here reproduced. They include a specimen from the two hundred or more relics found in a "tope" on the site of the most ancient quarter of Taxila. These objects were once, at least three, and perhaps four, centuries before the birth of Christ, and it is interesting to see so conclusive evidence of the love of art and of skill in the production of works of art which prevailed at that early time in the Indian peninsula.

A "tope" is a form of Buddhist monument found in various places in India and constructed, it is said, it had two distinct purposes. The first was to serve as a place of safe deposit for sacred relics, and the second to commemorate some important event.

In the former case the "tope" was called a "stupa," and in the latter case a "stone." But whatever the purpose of the "tope" its external form was always that of a circular dome, surmounting a broader base, which may be either cylindrical, square or polygonal. Sometimes these bases rise to excessively narrowing terraces with the dome, or "stupa," consisting of the two lower relics, were deposited.

There was a curious mingling of the Indian and Greek forms in the art and this may have been a result of the conquest of Alexander and his army, an amalgamation of things which he found in the subdued Asiatic countries. The great truth, however, was not to be conquered or anything but the utmost admiration for the Greek genius. On the other hand, it was a splendid thing for the followers of Buddha to be able to destroy a monument, or any other performance work of human genius.

It is also interesting to note that the influence of the conquests of ancient Greece reached India, and

CLIP NOW AND BEGIN TO WORK ON EMBROIDERY

Of all the gifts that so delight the women folks at Christmas time, none are so acceptable as the dainty articles of hand embroidery made by some dear friend.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Then both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is soon unable to do its work normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases I find constant over-eating the cause of difficulties—the fire and only way necessary to neutralize the acid and prevent fermentation is by using some of the simple mixture immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of magnesia, bisurated in a little water, has the best and only safely effective antacid and food corrective known, for it instantly neutralizes and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and every particle of food is caused to digest the food in a healthy normal manner. Be sure to get the pure bisurated magnesia, as the ordinary commercial magnesia is worthless. Adler-i-la Tablets contain the best form of pure bisurated magnesia, correctly proportioned with other valuable digestives. For sale at all druggists.

RUBBER TAKING PLACE OF SOLE SHOE LEATHER

It is stated in New York that more than a million pairs of shoes which will be made in one of the New England centres of the trade for next year selling will have soles of rubber fibre, felt or similar material. This innovation is due to the high price of sole leather. Soles of the kind mentioned are said to be replacing leather ones, especially in bowling, school and house shoes. Leading shoe manufacturers are waiting to learn what effect the use of substitutes will have upon the sole leather market.

MARKS TOUCH NEW LOW.

The decline of the price of marks to a new low record in the foreign exchange market has been a recent feature of the latter. It is believed that if the decline continues Germany may have to ship gold. This would be something hitherto avoided by that country. It is well supplied with gold, the latest statement of the Bank of Germany showing a heavy increase.

One reason for the decline in marks is heavy selling of that exchange by this country by banks or commercial houses having large credits in Germany. Another factor is the hoarding of war supplies in this country for shipment to the Kaiser's realm.

BORROWING IN LONDON.

Several bullion dealers have been borrowed in London within a few days by New York houses carrying stocks there. They had previously deposited all the margin required on their accounts and rates were as low in London as in this side of the ocean. What has been done in this line is regarded as likely to curtail the shipment of American stocks from London to New York, something which has an adverse influence on prices in this country.

FEDERAL RESERVE PLAN.

A Washington dispatch states that proposals by the Federal Reserve Board and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, to the British government, made through Sir George Paish, include a plan to take care of American indebtedness to Great Britain if exports, in addition to the $100,000,000 in gold raised by a bond issue, do not cancel it. The plan has not been made public. The British government has not replied to the proposition.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

General Salesmanager N. A. Hawkins of the Ford Motor Company, together with New York Branch Manager Gaston Plantiff, made a flying trip to Boston yesterday and paid a secret visit to Charles E. Fay, the local manager. Mr. Hawkins is making a trip to the different plants throughout the country, and after a thorough inspection of the plant across the Charles River at the Chestnut Hill reservoir, he expressed himself as particularly pleased at the manner in which the local Ford Motor Company are being handled.

"Comparisons," he said, "are always odious and without making any in this instance I will unhesitatingly say that the Boston branch of the Ford Motor Company is in A1 condition. Its situations, both so far as the retail and the wholesale departments are concerned, are admirably located, and the amount of work done at the bridge proves that Mr. Fay is getting the full amount of efficiency from his organization.

"My company does not experience any ill effects from the European situations, for we are now doing a rush in record quantities and our output this year is far ahead of previous seasons. We are anticipating a tremendous business with our sedan and coupelet, which will be on the market in a very few weeks."

Albion L. Danforth of the Cadillac Automobile Company of Boston returned from the Detroit plant of the Cadillac company yesterday afternoon. Mr. Danforth went West to attend the season's conference with some of her most charming new wraps, suits and gowns.

The Affairs of the Navy Demand Congressional Action

The very first duty to engage Congress at the session beginning in December should be to make adequate provision for the material development of the navy, and to investigate the grave allegations concerning its efficiency which have been made by Hon. George von L. Meyer, former Secretary of the Navy, and Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts.

Admiral Dewey in his report to the Secretary of the Navy will recommend as a basis for development the building of FOUR BATTLESHIPS AND FIFTEEN SUBMARINES. The recommendation of the Admiral of the Navy, the hero of Manila Bay, who never, like Winston Churchill, talked about "digging the rats out of their holes," but went in and dug them out, SHOULD BE OF CONVINCING AUTHORITY.

Nevertheless there is ominous silence on the part of the admiral's immediate superiors, the Secretary of the Navy and the President. Persons professing to know declare that not even the vote of no confidence rendered by the nation in the recent election has shaken the calm satisfaction of the administration with its past record, and that the two-battleship program will be adhered to.

Such a course would be as unwise politically as it is unpatriotic and dangerous.

If anything has been shown by the war in Europe from which the United States can derive a lesson it is the vital necessity for sea power. Germany, notwithstanding a series of victories on land which have compelled the admiration even of her enemies, has been hemmed in by the British fleet until grass grows in the streets of her seaports, and the harbors of neutral nations are turned into graveyards for her shipping awaiting a day of resurrection. Yet Germany was no contemptible naval power; was indeed tied with us for second place and would undoubtedly have passed us had not the war reduced her strength.

The people of the United States recognize the need of an adequate navy. There never has been a time when naval construction was not popular, nor a moment when that service did not evoke national enthusiasm. The Democratic party recognized this fact when in its Baltimore platform it claimed credit for being the sponsor of the new navy and promised to keep it adequate to all national needs.

THAT PROMISE IT HAS VIOLATED, and THE BOAST, which was based on the admirable administration of the Navy Department by William C. Whitney, thirty years ago, BECOMES RIDICULOUS when reviewed in the light of the achievements of Josephus Daniels today.

Not merely appropriations for naval construction and maintenance on a liberal scale should be made by the coming Congress, but there should be no failure to adopt the resolution of Mr. Gardner providing for an investigation into the efficiency of our army and navy. We can tolerate being in second place with our fighting force on the sea, and in tenth place, perhaps, with our military establishment, provided both are raised to the highest point of efficiency and are, for their numbers and strength, models for such organizations in all nations.

Mr. Gardner declares they are not. Former Secretary Meyer, probably the most efficient head of the Navy Department since the Whitney regime, declares that THE EFFICIENCY OF THE NAVY HAS BEEN RAPIDLY DETERIORATING. It may be urged that both of these gentlemen are Republican partisans desirous of making capital at the expense of the Democratic administration. If so, the best way of depriving them of this capital is to order the investigation requested and disprove their charges.

It is, of course, of vital importance that in the event such an investigation is ordered, the President, as Commander-in-Chief, should direct all officers of the army and navy summoned as witnesses to give their testimony fully and without reservation. Unless this shall be done, the investigation will be worthless, and its failure can be laid only at the door of the administration.

The pressing and immediate duty of Congress is to adopt Admiral Dewey's plan for beginning the building of an adequate navy, and to order a searching investigation into the manner in which the present forces at the command of the army and navy authorities are utilized.

Babies' Week

Go to See the "Saving Babies' Exhibit" at the Public Library

This is "Babies' Week."

The American Association for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality is holding its convention here in Boston.

There is a "Saving Babies' Exhibit" at the Public Library.

If you have a baby of your own, or if you only just care for babies, go to see it without fail. Many local societies, among them the Milk and Baby Hygiene Association and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, have united their efforts to make the exhibit a success.

Every mother can learn something at the exhibit, perhaps the very bit of knowledge that may some day save her baby's life.

And while you talk of babies this week, remember Nathan Straus of New York, the man who really started the work of protecting infant life in this country, the man whose teachings and philanthropies now bear fruit all over the world.

He demonstrated the value of pure milk in many cities here and abroad, spending the necessary money, devoting his time and strength to this work, fighting and denouncing those that opposed him for their own selfish purposes or through ignorance.

The national, State and city governments have been aroused, and THAT is the work of Nathan Straus more than of any other man.

The infant death rate has been reduced all over the nation, and THAT is primarily Nathan Straus' work. The nation owes to THAT ONE MAN tens of thousands of useful lives saved already—and will owe to him many millions of lives in years to come.

He led and made the fight. He aroused the national conscience, and HE is the man to honor, now that hundreds of cities and thousands of citizens vie with each other in plans for protecting child life.

Girls Should Learn to Do Something Useful

There Is No More Reason Why an Intelligent and Able-bodied Young Woman Should Be Dependent on Somebody Else for Her Living Than There Is Why a Man Should Be, Says Dorothy Dix

By DOROTHY DIX

THIS is the time of peculiar upheaval in the feminine world. Up to now the average American girl has expected to stay at home until she was married and then go to a home of her own. And she could fairly safely count on getting married.

In the last few years, however, this comfortable program of life has been altered. The high cost of living has made it impossible for the man in ordinary circumstances to support a family of girls in comfort. The girls themselves have heard so much about the parasitic woman that they have become ashamed of hanging like a millstone around a poor old father's neck. Also the chances of catching a husband are greatly diminished, and young women of presentable appearance are no longer certain, as they formerly were, of getting married.

All of these conditions have turned the thoughts of girls toward self-support. This is well. There is no more reason why an intelligent and able-bodied young woman should be dependent on somebody else for her living than there is why a man should be. It develops a woman's brain and brawn and character to do some regular work whereby she earns honest money and acquires the strength to stand on her own feet instead of flopping, like a limp dish rag, on some stronger individual.

But it takes a long time to rid ourselves of the superstitions of the past, and one of the most persistent of these hoodoos is that when a woman works she must always do some ladylike kind of work—that is, something artistic or literary and that is genteel—just as it was considered in the past more refined and elegant for a woman to do embroidery than it was to do plain and useful sewing.

For this reason at least 50 per cent. of the girls who want to work want to go on the stage, or to recite, or do parlor entertaining, or write, or paint. Also they want to do these things in a dilettante manner and receive large rewards for their labor. They overlook the fact that to succeed in the fine arts as well as in common occupations you have to slave like a dray horse, and that there are absolutely no short cuts or quick roads to success. Behind every star on the stage and every well known writer there lies an apprenticeship that has been served in toil and sweat and blood.

Work the Keystone

Now, of course, if a girl has the divine fire, and has given unmistakable signs of a genius for acting or painting, or writing, she does well to choose the calling to which her talent dedicates her. But there is no such thing as a girl making herself into a Maude Adams because she would like to be on the stage, or into an Ellen Glasgow because she would be pleased to see her name in print. Nature settled that question for her once and for all before she was born, and all the work of the world will never take the place of talent.

It's as foolish for an ungifted girl to think that she can make herself a writer or an actress as it would be for a short, stubby woman to think she could make herself into a tall, willowy goddess. It simply can't be done.

It is my unhappy lot in life to see hundreds of these would-be artist and actor and writer girls who come to the city seeking their fortunes and who find no market for their poor wares, and are stranded in its hard streets. There's hardly a week in the year that half a dozen of these forlorn creatures are not knocking at my door, begging me to help them launch some sort of concert or entertainment or benefit to help them out, and in which good natured patronesses hold up their friends and make them buy tickets.

Now, these girls have plenty of intelligence. They could make good livings if they would only come down off their high horses and plough a little, and do something practical, give some useful service that the world needs.

You don't see every man trying to be an actor, or writer, or doctor, or lawyer. If you did you would see among men as wholesale starvation and failure as you do among women. Men realize that they have got to be grocers and butchers, bakers and candlestick makers, and that while we can do without the fine arts on a pinch we have got to have the common necessities, and that the purveyors of them are the ones that make the money.

Choose Something Useful

So I entreat the young women who are contemplating going to work to support themselves to choose something useful to do, something practical to do. Do the work that lies closest to you so well that somebody will not only be willing but anxious to pay you for doing it. There's never any dearth of a market for a super-excellent quality of goods, and this applies to labor more than to anything else. The world is flooded with amateurs, but there are never enough experts in any line to go around.

Many a girl who fails as an actress would make a fortune raising chickens if she put half as much study on the temperament of a hen as she does on the psychology of Lady Macbeth. Many a girl who paints daubs pictures that she can't sell for $2 apiece would have women breaking their necks to pay her $75 for hats. Many a girl who is starving along trying to write pot boilers could be riding in her own automobile if she had worked as hard at the art of keeping boarders as she does at trying to learn how to write.

Do something practical and useful, girls. The world has always got to be fed and clothed, and washed and cleaned, and have its sox darned, and its bills kept, and as long as you minister to the world's comforts you can always get paid for it. Don't be misled by the glamour about any kind of work. The only fancy brand on work is the dollar mark. And the way to get that is to do something that people really need.
